Short Biography Yibee Huang is the Chief Executive Officer of the Covenants Watch, a coalition and collaborative platform of human rights NOGs based in Taipei, Taiwan. She studied psychology, law, and public health, with a PhD degree from National Yang Ming University on human rights indicator development. Yibee has extensive experience in the unique “Taiwan model” of reviews of state reports on human rights covenants (ICCPR and ICESCR) and conventions (CRPD, CEDAW and CRC). In addition to the coordination of civil society groups to produce quality parallel reports to supplement the state reports on human rights, she delivers training courses and helps strengthen arguments made by partner organizations and lawyers from the perspectives of international human rights standards. Yibee is also one of the few Taiwanese that have had the experiences with UN human rights mechanisms, by filing urgent appeals and submitting reports. Apart from advocacy activities, Yibee’s research interests include the development of human rights indicators and human rights impact assessment, as well as application of human rights treaties in domestic courts.
